

4-case

From the manager's story: "In my department there is an employee of pre-retirement age. He is not enthusiastic about the introduction of new technologies and work methods, and also regards his responsibilities in new conditions. Due to the upcoming staff reduction, the opportunity arose to fire him. Treat the employee's age with respect and patience, or should just ask him to leave?"