

13-case

Didactic competence A young teacher turned to you for help and told about her difficulties when conducting classes in a preparatory group for school children are often distracted, do not listen to the task, and talk about extraneous topics.

What advice would you give her?

Psychological competence A kindergarten psychologist, at a consultation for parents, spoke in detail about the importance of the arbitrariness of cognitive mental processes when analyzing children's readiness for school. What did she say?