

6-case

From the manager's story: During the entire time the regional manager has been working in my department, I have observed a complete lack of activity in his professional activities (he is used to working without leaving the office, waiting for clients to come or call). I consider it necessary to dismiss him based on the results of the probationary period. How to do this to avoid unnecessary emotions?