

15-case

From the employee's story: "The deputy branch manager, with whom I have had a friendly and working relationship for more than 12 years, brought me to work at this bank in March 2009. Due to direct subordination, all my activities are aimed at fulfilling his instructions. How can I get out of the "role of his shadow" and finally "privatize" the results of my work, without violating the subordination both in his eyes and in the eyes of the branch manager?"
